NEW NATIONAL BANK TO OPEN BUSINESS TO-DAY

Institution Organized by Retiring Officers of the Commercial.

JOHN POOLE AT HEAD

Parting of Ways Generally Regretted in Washington's Financial Circles.

By I. A. FLEMING.

The Federal National Bank, capital $500,000, surplus $125,000 will open for business in Washington within a few days.

A temporary office will be opened to-day for subscriptions to stock at $125 a share at 100 G Street, Northwest. Application for a charter is ready to file with the opening of the office of the controller of the currency this morning.

While the matter is yet in the initial stages it is moving with rapid speed, one-third of the stock having been subscribed at a meeting held at the office of Swartzell, Rheem & Henner last night.

While no names were mentioned in connection with the official staff of the new institution, it is generally understood that John Poole, heretofore cashier of the Commercial National Bank, will be the president of the Federal.

Other names have been considered. An option has been secured on the Small Building on the southeast corner of Fourteenth and G streets.

Officers of Commercial.

The new bank is an offshoot of the Commercial National Bank and the indirect result of the annual election of directors there yesterday.

Members John H. Clapp, Myer Cohen, Frank B. Noyes and Clarence H. Rhoads were not re-elected to the board of directors at Tuesday's election.

Several directors who were re-elected are expected to cast their fortunes with the Federal National.

John Poole, who has been the active cashier and an influential official for four years, has not only tendered his resignation as a director, but will retire in connection with the opening of the bank this morning.

Poole to Take Charge.

Mr. Poole is chairman of the subscription committee and will immediately take charge of the office.

It is a parting of the ways for business friends who have long been associated together in the upbuilding of a great enterprise and is regrettable from more than one standpoint.

Mr. Jordan and his friends elected a ticket that included James C. Hill, A. C. Chapman, H. Bradley Davidson, Wade H. Ellis, R. Golden Donaldson, Arthur Lee, C. H. Jones, and Orrin G. Starbuck, who are directors of the United States Trust Company, although the first three named have been on the Commercial board, and Mr. Jordan, too, for some time.

Wade H. Ellis, recently Assistant Attorney General, is slated for the position of general counsel of the Commercial National.

On the Jordan Ticket.

The Jordan ticket also included H. McInerney, F. H. Dehner, Luther S. Finkle, Arthur Lee, P. K. Nettles, Orrin G. Starbuck, and George Tuffy Vaughn, all new members to the directorate.

The "receders" have nothing but words of praise for the excellent condition of the Commercial National Bank, and are proud that they have been identified with its success. Some of the "old guard" expressed keen regret at severing relations of long standing.

Mr. Jordan, when seen in connection with the developments of the day, expressed regret that there was a defection in the ranks of the newly elected board, but asserted that the Commercial National would still do business at the old stand. He and his friends had voted nearly two to one, and there was nothing left to do but to carry out the line of policy they had mapped out for the bank. He believed that a board of thirty directors was too unwieldy to do business, and that fifteen or twenty directors would be much more satisfactory.

Organized in 1904.

The Commercial National Bank was organized in 1904, and recently celebrated its twelfth anniversary. Many of its promoters and original directors are included in the departing contingent.

A. G. Chapman is president, Eldridge E. Jordan, vice president; T. H. Shea, second vice president; Tucker K. Sanda, third vice president; John Poole, cashier, and H. V. Hunt, assistant cashier.

Two of the official staff are among those who will retire. The deposits of the Commercial National on the last report to the controller, were $1,125,000.

It is one of the busiest institutions in the city, with hundreds of depositors, and owns its own home on one of the best corners in Washington.

AEROPLANE PART OF PAGEANT BY SUFFRAGE HOST

Woman Aviator to Carry Allegorical Message and Take Part in Tableaux.

REHEARSAL IN OPEN AIR

Philadelphia Woman Tells of Campaign of Suffragists in Keystone State.

By I. A. FLEMING.

If the present plans of the National Woman Suffrage Association carry, one of the features of the parade and pageant to be staged by the association March 3, in which women of all professions will march, will be an aeroplane driven by a woman, who will bring to the suffragist marchers an allegorical message and will make a flight over the city following the parade.

A telegram was sent last night by Miss Gloria Stein, treasurer in charge of the pageant, to Miss Bernetta Miller, who some time ago flew at College Park, asking if she would be able to arrange the flight for March 3. It is expected the date will be managed.

Should the person of the aviator be secured, it is planned to include her and her machine in the plot of the tableaux that are to be presented on the Treasury steps.

These tableaux will have as their central figure the character of "Columbia," which will probably be taken by Mrs. Maudie, the singer, and prominent with her will be other well-known actresses representing the five virtues attributed to womanhood—Justice, Liberty, Charity, Peace, and Hope. The five virtues will be assembled by Columbia as the tableaux develop, and the plan is to weave Miss Miller and her machine into the plot as a winged messenger of progress.

The decision to get the aeroplane was not reached until yesterday, and the details of the plan with it included have not been fully worked out. Mrs. Tinnin will take the matter up immediately, however, with Miss MacKare, her assistant, who has the arrangement of the tableaux.

Rehearsal Knotty Problem.

One of the knotty problems now before Mrs. Tinnin and her aids is the manner of rehearsing the pageant. The parade will be rehearsed, of course, but will be left to the direction of the marchal and her lieutenants, but the tableaux presents a different problem.

It will be an intricate theatrical effort and must have rehearsal before March 3. The rehearsal will start about a week before the date of the parade and the cast will be as large that it will be almost too unwieldy for a building. It is planned to rehearse the tableaux on the Treasury steps with no other curtains to cut off the gaze of the public but the curtain of night.

The selection and ordering of the costumes for the principles in the parade and tableaux is now occupying the time of those who are assigned to the arrangement of the street entertainment. Mrs. Tinnin said yesterday that as far as she was able to estimate from the orders sent in up to date, the costumes and "props" for the whole pageant, parade and tableaux could cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. This sum will not really represent the money represented by the costumes used, however, for much of that that will be used will be loaned or furnished by the committee and greatly reduced prices by merchants and manufacturers in sympathy with the suffrage cause.

Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, Jr., of Philadelphia, a member of one of the Quaker city's oldest and wealthiest families and a suffragist worker of note, was in Washington yesterday. She is a member of the Congressional committee and is the treasurer of the Pennsylvania Equal Franchise Society of Philadelphia.

Campaign in Pennsylvania.

An effort is on foot in Philadelphia, according to Mrs. Lewis, to bring about equal suffrage in Pennsylvania through a constitutional amendment.

"Not only is the constitution of the State antiquated in its treatment of the suffrage question," said Mrs. Lewis, "but in other ways. The system of municipal courts of Philadelphia is a relic and the people are demanding a reform. They are also out for the passage of the employer's liability laws, and, of course, a large number want woman suffrage."

"We feel that these reforms are assured us in time, because at the last election the State went Progressive, and the legislature is of the same political complexion. These reforms are, of course, blanks in the Progressive platform. We could get them in 1912 without doubt by the regular channel, but by calling a constitutional convention we can get them through by 1914, we figure."

Mrs. Lewis says that a large delegation of women will come from Pennsylvania, and that there probably will be many men in the parade from that State. She is the sister of Dr. Howard Kelly, of Johns Hopkins University, and states that her brother will probably be in the line of the parade.

The Philadelphia County Woman Suffrage Association, the Susan B. Anthony League of Western Pennsylvania, and the Equal Franchise Federation of Pittsburgh are all much interested in the pageant March 3, and will donate suffrage supporters liberally.

The names of Mrs. Russell Malcolm MacKare and Miss Morgan, the niece of James W. Pinchot, were announced yesterday as prospective members of the women's cavalry that will march in the parade.

The following were added to the advisory committee: Mrs. John C. Farnham, Mrs. Richard Wrightman, Representative and Mrs. Luther W. Mott, and Mrs. W. S. T. Sampson.

Federal Control Diminishing.

Federal control of the situation at Acapulco, Mexico, is diminishing, according to dispatches to the State Department yesterday. A force of 2,000 rebels, under the command of Julian Padilla, has control of all of Costa Grande, has control of that district are pouring into the city of Acapulco. Padilla's men are threatening the city, and an attack is feared. Engineers employed on railroad construction near Costa Grande have been forced to abandon their work.

Ambassador Wilson notified the department yesterday that the strike on the National Railways has been adjusted.

TWO WITNESSES FLEE TO CANADA

"Oracle of Wall Street" and Rockefeller's Private Secretary Dodge Sleuths.

ELUDE SUBPOENA SERVER

Miss Katherine Harrison, Confidential Clerk of Late H. H. Rogers, Located in Montreal.

New York, Jan. 11.—Following the flight from Pujo committee subpoena servers of Miss Katherine Harrison, H. H. Rogers' "Oracle," it was learned today that Personal J. McIntosh, for thirteen years private secretary to William Rockefeller, and a receiver of Standard Oil assets, also has fled.

McIntosh is said to be in Montreal, of which city he is a native.

Mrs. Harrison, who is wanted by the Money Trust investigating committee, is also in Montreal, at least she was in the Canadian city on Sunday.

From information received here it is believed that McIntosh and Miss Harrison have conferred together concerning the efforts of the Pujo committee to have them testify concerning the 1902 Amalgamated Copper deal and other gigantic financial operations in which they had an active part.

According to an official of the Pujo committee, McIntosh and Miss Harrison could tell a story that would prove even more sensational than the hoped-for testimony of William Rockefeller himself.

In their confidential capacities, these two had complete and exclusive control of all correspondence and all the books of the 1902 copper deal in which H. H. Rogers, William Rockefeller, Thomas W. Lawson, and Albert C. Burrage, a retired Boston multimillionaire, divided a profit of $2,000,000, which was returned in a few days upon an investment of $2,000,000.

McIntosh has been an exile from 28 Broadway for five months, during most of which period he has been diligently sought by United States subpoena servers. At Standard Oil headquarters today it was denied that his whereabouts are known.

At the Terminal Building, 12 Park Avenue, where Mr. McIntosh has maintained an office, it was denied that any one of that name was known there. At the Dorriton apartments, where McIntosh maintains luxurious rooms, it was said that the missing man had not been there for months. Mrs. McIntosh, who was a daughter of J. C. Wilson, a paper manufacturer, of Montreal, closed the apartment a week ago. She left hurriedly in a private automobile and did not disclose her destination.

There are at present $1,000,000 passenger cars, 7,000 motor trucks, and 25,000 automobiles running on the roads. This is considerably less than in 1912. American Road and Cart, 100 E. St., N.W., is the only one in New York State.

WANTED BY PROBES.

MISS KATHERINE HARRISON.

Miss Katherine Harrison, confidential clerk of late H. H. Rogers, is wanted by the Money Trust investigating committee.

MALLORY LINER COLORADO REPORTED ON ROCKS OFF FLORIDA GOAST

Key West, Fla., Jan. 11.—The steamer Florida, from Tortugas, arrived here this evening and reported having passed the Mallory liner Colorado ashore on the Northeast Cay in twelve feet of water forward of the main mast. The captain of the Florida reported that the Colorado ran ashore at 2 o'clock last night, but although the strong wind and heavy sea were driving her still farther ashore, her commander, Capt. Schlemmer, did not think there was any immediate danger.

The Colorado is fitted with wireless apparatus, but so far no communication has been received from her, and it is thought that the instruments are temporarily out of gear. Tugsboats are being dispatched to the Colorado's assistance.

Capt. Granble, of the revenue-cutter Miami, has received orders from Washington to rush to the assistance of the Colorado as soon as possible, and the wireless station here is sending out messages to other ships, giving the position of the stranded ship.

The Colorado is bound from New York for Galveston with a cargo of general freight. She is about 2,000 tons and carries a crew of thirty.

JURY'S VERDICT IN BOYS' FAVOR

Brigade, After Year's Legal Fight, Gets Claim to Rifles Vestryman Seized.

CASE DECIDED ON APPEAL

Controversy Between Officers of Christ Church Finally Decided in Court.

After a legal battle of over a year, the Boys' Brigade, formerly of Christ Church Southeast, came out victorious over James Berry, one of the vestrymen of the church, yesterday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock, and now they have an undisputed claim to St. Springfield rifles taken from them a year ago by Mr. Berry.

The controversy started a year ago, when Mr. Berry and other church members acting with him attempted to oust the brigade and take the rifles from them. The claim was made that the brigade organization out of funds contributed by the members and secured in other ways, was in fact the property of the church, and that the organization was taking the rifles. Wardens Berry claimed to be acting for the vestry and church authorities.

The rifles were recovered by the boys on a writ of replevin last February, and since that time the organization has retained its own hall and conducted its own affairs at Friendship House, Fifth Street and Virginia Avenue Southeast, using the rifles in question for drill pending the decision of the case appealed.

By the terms of the jury's verdict, the rifles are declared to be the property of the boys and not of Warden Berry or the church.

Commandant Frederick M. Kerby, who with other officers of the organization brought the suit to recover the property, declared yesterday that the work of the organization would go forward in the future just as in the past. The organization now numbers about sixty-five boys, who are uniformed and equipped and affiliated with the national organization known as the United Boys' Brigades of America.

MRS. CLEVELAND SHARES HONORS

IN HONOR OF THE JUDICIARY

The White House last night was given by President and Mrs. Taft at the White House last night. Seldom has so brilliant and distinguished a company assembled in the executive mansion as that which gathered there yesterday evening. To meet the members of the judiciary were invited the Diplomatic Corps, Senators and Representatives and their wives, high officers of the Army and Navy, and of the executive branch of the government, and also leaders in the residential society of Washington.

The White House was decorated with beautiful flowers, brought from the government greenhouses and propagating gardens. The handsome gowns and jewels worn by the women attending the reception added to the brilliancy of the scene.

Among the guests were Mrs. Grover Cleveland, widow of the former President, her daughter, Miss Katharine Cleveland, and Mrs. Cleveland's handmaid, Prof. T. J. Preston. Though it is a number of years since Mrs. Cleveland, as "First Lady of the Land," received the guests at President Cleveland's state reception, Mrs. Cleveland found herself in the midst of many familiar faces, and she was her usual gracious self in her greetings to her old friends. Mrs. Cleveland arrived about 8 o'clock, escorted by one of the President's aids, and was shown immediately to the Blue Room. With her came Prof. Preston, Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, and Miss Cleveland.

The President and Mrs. Taft, followed by the members of the Cabinet and their wives, and preceded by the President's aids, came down the broad White House staircase at the appointed hour. The Marine Band played the national anthem as the march down the staircase began. The party crossed the corridor and entered the Blue Room, where the receiving line was formed immediately. The President's aids in the party were Col. Spencer Cosby, U. S. A.; Maj. Thomas A. L. Rhoads, U. S. A.; Lieut. John W. Thompson, U. S. N.; Capt. Lewis F. Little, U. S. M.; Lieut. C. K. Rockwell, U. S. A.; Lieut. E. C. Gribble, Jr., U. S. A.; Lieut. Mathias E. Manly, U. S. N.; Lieut. Carl Grayson, U. S. N.; Lieut. John D. Burt, U. S. A.; Lieut. Henry H. Rodgers, U. S. N.; Lieut. Sterling F. S. N.

The President stood at the head of the receiving line, and the guests were introduced to him by Maj. Rhoads. Next to the President stood Mrs. Taft. Mrs. Knox, wife of the Secretary of State, stood next to Mrs. Taft, since there was no Vice-President and no candidate for re-election.

The most hotly contested fight in the recent history of Massachusetts politics was added yesterday with the election of Representative John W. Weeks to succeed W. Murray Crane, present incumbent who was not a candidate for re-election. Representative Samuel McCall and Mr. Weeks were deadlocked in caucus for four days, thirty-one ballots being taken.

The re-election of the Senate is not clouded by the election of yesterday, the party balance being maintained, and the Democrats continuing in the majority in the new Senate.

The evening Legislature yesterday voted with little respect for party lines, with the result that John B. Kendrick, Democrat, probably will defeat Francis E. Warren, Republican, the present incumbent, in the United States Senate. Indications are that the re-elected Senator on joint ballot will be Kendrick. (2) Warren, (1) R. Pratt, Republican, was elected speaker with the aid of the solid Democratic vote.

The guests of honor, the judiciary and their wives, assembled in the Green Room. Then led by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. White, named before the President and the receiving line. The Justice of the Supreme Court, walked first, the Chief Justice and Mrs. White, Mr. Justice Joseph McKenna, Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes and Mrs. Holmes, Mr. Justice William B. Howland Taft, Mr. Justice Horace Harmon Lurion, Mrs. Lurion, Mr. Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Mrs. Hughes, Mr. Justice Willis Van Devanter, Mr. Justice Joseph R. Lamar and Mrs. Lamar, Mr. Justice Mahlon Pitney and Mrs. Pitney.

Then came the Judges of the Court of Claims of the United States, Judge Charles Bowen Howry and Mrs. Howry, Judge Fenton M. Whitlock and Mrs. Whitlock, Judge Samuel Stebbins Barney, and Judge Wesley Atkinson.

Next in line were the judges of the United States Commerce Court—President Judge Martin A. Knapp and Mrs. Knapp, Judge William H. Hunt and Mrs. Hunt, Judge John E. Garland, and Judge Julian W. Mack.

The judges of the United States Court of Customs Appeals followed—President Judge Robert M. Montgomery and Mrs. Montgomery, Judge James F. Smith, Judge Orion M. Barber, Judge Marion De Vries, and Judge George E. Martin, Judge Samuel Stebbins Barney, and Judge Wesley Atkinson.

The judges of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia were next in line—Chief Justice Seth Shepard and Mrs. Shepard, Mr. Justice Charles H. Robb and Mrs. Robb, and Mr. Justice Josiah A. Van Orsdal and Mrs. Van Orsdal.

Next came the justices of the Supreme Court of the District, led by Chief Justice Harry M. Claiborne. The others followed—Justice John Barnard and Mrs. Barnard, Mr. Justice Thomas H. Anderson and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. Justice Ashley M. Gould and Mrs. Gould, Mr. Justice Daniel T. Wright and Mrs. Wright, and Mr. Justice Wendell P. Stafford and Mrs. Stafford.

The hundreds of guests invited to meet the members of the judiciary assembled as usual in the East Room, and were received by the President as soon as the guests of honor had passed.

A handsome collation was served in the state dining room, and later in the evening there was general dancing in the East Room, a section of the Marine Band playing.

President Taft appeared among the dancers and with Mrs. Pitney, wife of Mr. Justice Pitney, danced twice around the room. They were much applauded.

Many handsome gowns were worn by the women attending the reception. Mrs. Taft wore a most becoming gown of black cloth with a bodice of black velvet and point lace.

FISHER FAVORS USE OF PENSION OFFICE FOR BALL

Secretary of Interior, However, Suggests Elimination of Supper.

CONCERTS IN DISFAVOR

Great Inconvenience Caused by Disrupting Work of Two Government Bureaus.

Use of the Pension Office, with proper restrictions, for the inaugural ball is recommended by Secretary of the Interior Fisher in letters to the chairman of the Senate and House Committees on Public Buildings and Grounds, submitted yesterday.

Substantial changes in the character of the use to which the building has been put for other inaugural balls must be made. Secretary Fisher states, and these include omission of the ball supper, construction of temporary rooms outside the building, and limitation of the use of the building to the central court and a few rooms for the Presidential party, and curtailment of the concert program to one evening and two matinees. These changes are in line with suggestions from members of the inaugural committee in conference with the Secretary of the Interior.

Secretary Fisher's statement to the chairman of the Senate and House committees is to the effect that present conditions in the Bureau of Pensions and the Bureau of Indian Affairs make it difficult to permit the use of the building as for previous inaugural balls and concerts.

He suggests that Congress should take charge of the inauguration celebration and make the necessary appropriation, therefore, but also promises his department will do all it can for the success of this inaugural ball.

Interference Over Protest.

The giving over of the building to the inaugural ball, entailing several days' interruption to business of the Pension Bureau, has been done over the vigorous objections of the Commissioner of Pensions, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Secretary of the Treasury.

"During ten or fifteen days the greater portion of the employees of the Pension Office have necessarily been excused from work, with reduction of pay."

"There is necessarily permanent loss in the general work of the office."

Consolidation of the district pension offices throughout the country into one office at Washington, so that from 200 to 300,000 pensioners are paid at the Washington office each month, and the accommodation of the Indian Office in the building have compelled the department to utilize every available square foot of space in the building. Not only all the rooms, but the courts and corridors are used. A request for authority to use the building for the Bureau of Mines, so that the building now used by the Bureau of Mines can be used temporarily by the Indian Office, has been made by the department, but this request has not been acted upon.

It will be necessary to construct temporary quarters for storing a large part of the files taken from the central court.

Most Store Files.

"The committee is willing to do without the supervision of the department," Secretary Fisher says. "It will permit the retention of a small quantity of the active files to enable the important and essential work of these two bureaus to proceed without prohibitive interruption. It does not remove, however, the cause of the damage to the irreplaceable files which must be stored outside of the building, nor does it obviate a substantial loss in the efficiency of the two bureaus."

"I most respectfully and earnestly suggest, however, that Congress should itself take charge of the inauguration celebration and make the necessary appropriation. An appropriation of $100,000 would involve far less loss to the taxpayers of the nation than is incurred directly and indirectly in the execution of this plan. A popular reception to the President can be held in the rotunda of the National Capitol, and there should be no charge whatever for admission to it. The execution of plans of this character will be delegated to the present inaugural committee under Congressional direction."

College Men's Feature.

Conferences between Robert N. Harper, chairman of the committee on civic organizations, John R. Truesdale, secretary of the National College League, and Men's League of New York, and Walter McLean, a prominent Princeton alumnus of Washington, were held yesterday on the part that college men are to have in the parade. Mr. Truesdale said he thought about 100 college men would come here to march. Details of the arrangements for their participation in the parade, including those relating to uniforms, have not been completed.

The inaugural parade will be in four divisions. It was announced by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, grand marshal.

First division, commanded by Gen. W. W. Wetherston, U. S. A., consisting of representatives of the army, navy, and Marine Corps, including the corps of cadets, the United States Marine Corps, and the United States Cavalry.

Second division, commanded by Gen. Albert L. Mills, U. S. A., consisting of organized militia and cadets from schools and colleges.

Third division, consisting of veteran and patriotic societies and organizations, including the Grand Army of the Republic and Spanish War Veterans. The marchers in this division will be a veteran Union soldier of the civil war, who is not yet selected.

Fourth division, Robert N. Harper, marshal, consisting of civic organizations, clubs, societies.

The parade will be from the east front of the Capitol, west along Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest to Washington Circle. Chairman Corcoran Thom, of the finance committee, announced that a total of $2,175 had been subscribed to the guarantee fund. The new subscriptions are as follows: Thomas A. Grant, $200; Jules Demotte, $200; A. G. Plant & Co., by Arthur G. Plant, $200; E. F. Brooks Company (additional), $200; P. A. Drury, $200; H. F. Taft, $200; Eugene S. Cochran, $200; Joshua Evans, Jr. (additional), $25; J. S. Flannery, $100; and the Western Union Telegraph Company, $200.
